Subject: Ted Sprink Recommendation

To Whom it may concern:

As a senior executive for a national leader in the financial services industry, I have known Ted Sprink since our respective companies partnered on a major new business initiative in the year 2000. We represented our respective companies in the negotiation of the strategic alliance, and in the development and national introduction of a series of new products and services targeting the financial services industry. I know Ted to be inciteful, creative, customer focused, fair, smart, dedicated and energetic.

His presentation skills, communication skills and team-building skills are well known in the financial services industry, as reflected in his many published articles, white papers, strategy memos and business plans.

Ted's strength is his ability to balance his family life with the demands of developing new products, services and business relationships; and in creating, implementing and managing sophisticated business plans on a national basis.

Sincerely,

Paul Schultz
